

SERENO

Fredrikson Stallard

In creating Sereno, artist-architects Fredrikson Stallard sought to create a moment of calm and solitude. The forms themselves arise from shards of glass violently fashioned by the artists, but they unite in absolute stillness with the insertion of a simple sheet and the transformation of the ensemble into mirror-polished stainless steel. This brings to the surface the reflection of the three unified elements and confirms their nature, somewhere between turmoil and serenity, which is composed through organization and symmetry.
